Former Senator Platt of New York died. Jacob H. Schiff's prediction of a great commercial struggle between Japan and America resulted in much comment. The cutting up of Jere F. Lillis, Kansas City banker, in the home of John P. Cudahy, millionaire, caused a sensation. Mrs. Cudahy denied stories connecting her with Lillis. A national strike growing out of the Philadelphia s uggle and led by Samuel Gompers was predicted. Mayor Reyburn was hanged in effigy in Philadelphia. The first regular passenger air line, on the Parseval balloon, will soon be established in Germany.

OF INTEREST TO FRUIT GROWERS.

Practical Methods of Orchard Management by State Experts.

The residents of this county are about to be shown the most approved methods of horticultural management and suppression of insect pests and fungous diseases that damage and destroy fruit trees. The localities, where demonstrations will be given and dates of these meetings, will be found below, on which occasion at least two experts from the division of zoology of the department of agriculture will be present to give practical instruction. Prof. Surface, State Zoologist, expects to be present at one or more of the meetings held in this county.

A section of the orchard in which these public meetings will be held will be conducted as a permanent model orchard and at the first meeting trees will be pruned, sprayed, and perhaps planted, insect pests and funguous diseases identified, different types of apparatus shown, and lectures delivered and questions answered. Everybody interested in fruit culture and in saving the trees from injury, whether by insects or diseases, should attend the meeting nearest his home; and, also, take with him specimens of pests for identification. It is understood that any questions asked as to such pests and on orchard management will be cheerfully answered.

The places where meetings are scheduled in this county next week will be on the afternoon of the dates given herewith. Should the weather prove unfavorable they will be postponed to the following day.

Saturday, March 19th, orchard of S. S. Miller, near Driftwood.

Wednesday, March 23, orchard of Hon F. X. Blumle, near Emporium.

Night-Cap Social.

A night-cap social will be held at the Swesey School House, Saturday evening, March, 19, 1910. Ice cream and cake will will be served extra. Public patronage solicited.

Hospital Necessary at Emporium.

The fact becomes more potent every day that a general hospital is of the utmost necessity at Emporium and our citizens should take the necessary steps to that end at once and a suitable building secured for that purpose. Many hundreds, if not thousands, of dollars are annually expended by the afflicted of this county. Not a week passes but we notice some of our unfortunates being obliged to go to foreign hospitals and in a majority of cases the misfortune falls upon those least able to stand the expense, whilst at a home institution a less expense could be met without hardship.

The large number of hospital cases our several physicians are compelled to take to cities and neighboring hospitals could be cared for at home just as well, thereby greatly assisting our physicians, who no doubt would heartily assist such an institution. We feel deeply for the loved ones who are compelled to leave the care of dear ones and often suffer untold agonies before they are placed in a hospital, where they have every convenieuce.

The PRESS will gladly lend every effort to have such an institution established here and shall give our mite and time to that end. We should greatly thank our readers for an expression of their opinion upon this subject and we doubt not that more than one kind-hearted lady or gentleman would contribute of their means and hands for suffering humanity.

What say you, friends?

More Evident Daily.

The continued unrest between capital and labor appears to be on the increase and it is very evident, for the general welfare of all interests, that a State Court of Arbitration be established by law and the decision of this tribunal to be final. Should this condition of affairs continue in this country—broken contracts by both contractors and the laborer, strikes, riot, bloodshead and stubbornness—how long will this Republic stand? We hope some day to see a just law placed upon our statue books, one free of all corporate influence or alied labor leagues, one that will guarantee equal justice to all, and impose a heavy penalty upon any firm, corporation, or individual who may violate a written contract.

The disgraceful performances in Philadelphia, likely to extend to all sections, may cause a complete demorlization of business and the loss of millions in money to the families of the laborer as well as corporations and manufacturers. Rioters never stop to think, or care, that every dollar's worth of property destroyed they have to pay their share in taxes to the county in which the depredation is committed—providing they are citizens.

Emery Comes Out.

We notice that Lewis Emery, Jr., of Bradford, Pa., has announced his candidacy for Congress in this district in a lengthy letter. Now that the field has lined up we shall see what we shall see. Our present Congressman, Hon. C. F. Barclay, of this county, Mr. C. E. Patton, of Clearfield and we understand Maj. McCreight, of DuBois, have made their announcements. While we shall not express our opinion at this time as to the other candidates, we hope our candidate from this county will be nominated. Many things can happen between now and June 4th. Since putting the above in type Mr. Emery sends us his announcement, which appears in this issue. His open letter will appear in next issue.

Plenty of Sickness.

The prevailing colds, called lagrippe, has struck the PRESS office for all that's in it, two or three of our men having been ill more or less for several days. Our clerk, Mr. W. S. In case any patrons' orders are delayed they will know the reason.

Elaborate Display.

The Misses Ludlum have a large announcement in this issue of the PRESS, announcing their Spring Opening of Millinery and Ladies Specialties, to commence on Wednesday and Thursday, next week. This will be the finest display ever presented by these energetic ladies and comprises all the very latest creations in hats and millinery, as well as the finest in ladies novelties. The Second Fire.

About five o'clock Saturday morning, Engineer Roussey of the electric light plant discovered the building owned by Mrs. Flora A. Card, of Olean, N. Y., to be on fire. The first floor of the building is occupied by Dininny, Burnsides & Co's hardware store, while the second floor is occupied by the Eagles Club Room. The fire orginated in one of the club rooms and had burned through the floor to the hardware when discovered. Fortunately the chemical engine of Mountaineer Hose Co., was soon on hand and it did not take long to extinguish the fire. The real loss is only about $200.

New Process of Making Dynamite is Valuable One

George VanVert, Superintendent at Burton Powder Works, Has Made Imporant Discovery.

Frozen Dynamite can be Exploded

George VanWert, of 63 North Beaver street, superintendent of the Burton Powder works at Covert's station, has just perfected a process by which frozen dynamite can be exploded without the dangerous method of thawing it.

The process will not only revolutionize the manufacture of this explosive, but will be the means of saving scores of lives that have been sacrificed each year to the deadly practice of of thawing that is necessary when the explosive freezes.

The invention, while it is yet kept a secret, is such that its disposal to the various dynamite companies should make Mr. VanWert a rich man.

Dynamite, like liquids, will freeze and before it can be used, it is necessary to put it in an oven or on a stove and thaw it out. The toll collected by death from explosions in doing this has been tremendous. Ever since dynamite has been manufactured, experts in this line, have been trying without success, to mannfacture dynamite which might be exploded without danger. The attempts have all failed and the news of Mr. VanWert's success will be important.

By his process dynamite in any state can be exploded. As soon as the idea is patented the secret will be announced.

Until a certain temperature is registered, dynamite is not dangerous, but once the heat overreaches a certain mark, it explodes. The danger of thawing the explosive has always been great, but the deaths that have been caused have resulted mostly from inexperienced foreigners doing the work.

Mr. VanWert has worked on the process for many years and it was only last week that he succeeded in exploding a mass of the frozen stuff. The test was successfully made near the Burton plant.—New Castle Press.

Clarence Quinn, an Emporium boy, who is employed by the Burton Powder Co., sends us the above article, through our friend, Mr. E. T. Wells. Geo. W. VanWert, being a former Emporium resident and has many friends here, we all are pleased to hear of anything advancing his interests. "Our Geo." is deserving of anything good that may come his way.

Cameron County Sabbath School Notes.

The Mid-Year Conference of the Pennsylvania Sabbath School Association, was held at Pittsburg, March 1st and 2nd.

The delegates were entertained at The Seventh Avenue Hotel and the Conference was held in the Administration Building of the H. J. Heinz Co., Mr. H. J. Heinz being President of the State Association.

Forty-eight counties were represented, there being 65 delegates present, and the sessions were most interesting, as well as instructive. There were no set speeches, but such questions were discussed as would meet the need of the county district and individual school, and each one present, I am sure, returned with a vision of greater things to be accomplished.

We are authorized to announce the name of HON. CHARLES F. BARCLAY, of Cameron county, as a candidate for Congress, upon the Republican ticket, in the 21st Congressional District, subject to the decision of the voters as expressed at the Primary Election, to be held in June of 1910.

Editor Press:—

CHAS. E. PATTEN.
Curwensville, Clearfield Co., Pa.,
November 30th, 1909.—t. p.

To The Editor:—I hereby announce myself a candidate for Congress in the 21st Pennsylvania district, subject to the decision of the Republican voters at the primaries to be held June 10, 1910. I make this announcement and enter the contest in compliance with the earnest requests of many prominent members of the party in the district and also because I believe that in Congress, if elected, I would be in a position to effectively advocate those principles and measures of good government, which now more than ever, should be embodied in Federal legislation. I believe in clean politics and progressive Roosevelt policies. And to the end that I may serve their best interests, I ask the support of the Republicans of this district.

The new Five and Ten Cent Store recently established by Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Blinzler on Fourth street, meets many a hearty reception at the hands of the public. Pine Stronger Than Steel.

Calculation confirmed by experiment has shown that, weight for weight, pine wood is stronger than steel in both transverse and tensile strength. It is regarded as doubtful if any metal could be made into a hollow rod equaling a bamboo rod in stiffness without exceeding it in weight. In structures of wood the weak points are always at the joints.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Hint to Amateur Carpenters.

A nail driven into oak or other timber oftentimes bends or breaks. To avoid this all is needed is a little wax or soap. The nail, if greased with either of these will go straight into the board. Carpenters who do finishing work bore a small hole in the handle of their hammers and then fill it with either wax or soap, running the nails into it as they use them.

Superlatively Great.

A group of men were seated about a table in the cafe of a western club discussing the rise of the prohibition sentiment when Wade Ellis bustled in. "A great man," said one. "A very great man," replied another; "he had John D. Rockefeller on the stand for a whole day and forced John to admit that he made money."

The Lady with the Feather—"'No,' I said, 'this is too much. I've allowed you to buy me flowers and chocolates and to take me to theaters and dinners; I've even granted you the liberty of hiring a motor car for me—and this, I said, is all the thanks I get—you try to kiss me.'"—The Sketch.

Farmer Boy Presidents.

Prof. W. J. Spillman declares that the farms have furnished this country with 92 per cent. of its presidents, 91 per cent. of its governors, 83 per cent. of its cabinet officers, 70 per cent. of its senators, 64 per cent. of congressmen and 55 per cent. of its railroad presidents.

Power of Wealth.

Fighting Plague of Rats.

United action by landowners and farmers is now being taken to put down the rat plague in Haddingtonshire, England. The plague has lately been accountable for enormous loss to game and root plants, and one week lately a thousand rats were destroyed.

Daily Health Hint.

If the bodily circulation is sluggish, a useful means of quickening it is by electricity. A current of electricity, carefully applied, will often relieve stiffness and lameness.

THE LAW SUPREME

PRESIDENT TAFT'S DISTINCT WARNING TO THE TRUSTS.

Statutes Must Be Obeyed, and the Government Will Proceed on Its Course Without Fear or Favor.

Mr. Taft's warning to the trusts is identical with that of his predecessor. They must obey the law. All are subject to it, and such as violate it may expect to be proceeded against. The authorities will play no favorites.

It may be asked, Why this announcement? Is it not everywhere understood and accepted that the law is for all alike? Does not congress legislate on that principle? Are not judges sworn to interpret and enforce the law without fear or favor?

Many of the trusts need the warning. The have been operating as with a contempt for the law. Retaining eminent lawyers, and advised by them on all points of importance, they have appeared to challenge enactments intended to put a limit on their transactions. In this way they have made themselves a class apart, and a menace to the public. Tht ordinary lawbreaker is easily reached. Without guidance in his course, he soon lands in the ditch. But predatory wealth hires guides, and is not easily tracked. Unless closely watched and diligently followed, it secures and gets away with the goods.

Recently the president has himself been warned. Wall street has as much as said to him: "Do you want to bring on another panic? Have you forgotten, or are you indifferent to, what happened in 1907 after Roosevelt threatened investments with inflammatory talk about executing the law? You are playing with fire, and a conflagaration now might become the most disastrous in the country's history."

Saturday night Wall street got its answer. The law is for all. If business methods anywhere are in defiance of law they must be changed to conform to the law. The administration has no intention of running amuck. But neither does it intend that the trusts shall run amuck. All legitimate values are the concern of those in authority, and it will be protected at every point. Other values have no claim upon protection. Why should they have? Created in defiance of law, even with the aid of men learned in the law, they must yield to the public interests.

Mr. Taft's word is good everywhere, and his ability everywhere respected. He is not an agitator, a crusader, nor is he surrounded by men of that type. He will do what he says, and his power is great. Men violating the law, or contemplating such conduct, should accept this latest deliverance of the president at its full face value. If any trust suffers it will deserve its fate.

Roosevelt's Return.

Mr. Roosevelt's cabled acceptance of the proposal of the New York Republican club to tender him a public welcome on his return from abroad next June, taken in conjunction with the fact that the plans were first submitted to President Taft and approved by him with the understanding that if at all possible he would be glad to take part, should effectively squelch the ambitions of those who had hoped to make political or factional capital out of the former president's home-coming. The complete and cordial agreement evident between Mr. Roosevelt, the reception managers and Mr. Taft, the New Yorkers being most punctilious in consulting the president regarding his views, robs the "Back from Elba" club of all opportunity to make trouble. According to the plans, when the former president returns he will be accorded a public demonstration, if possible reviewed by President Taft, but whether or not, Mr. Taft's present association of himself with the plan to honor his predecessor sufficiently answers the disseminators of dissension. Mr. Roosevelt's welcome by his native city and state will, no doubt, be an event of national interest, wholly apart from politics. His insistence that if it is offered it should take place on the day of his return and not on a later day indicates his desire that it shall be a welcome and not a manipulation.

All of which is in keeping with the general understanding of his character. Mr. Roosevelt may be impulsive on occasion, but in his most impulsive moments he has shown greater self-control and judgment than many of those who have been loudest in assuming his championship during his absence.

The Democratic View.

"Victory ahead for the Democrats," is the way a southern paper puts it in a headline. Peculiar to relate, the Democratic view of victory is nearly always from the rear.—Portland (Ore.) Telegram.

Democratic Logic.

Think of the Indiana Democrat who died at the age of 104! Think of the happy faces of Democratic postmasters he must have gazed into during the good old days before the people went crazy enough to trust the depraved Republican party!—Houston Post.

The best and happiest Democrats, according to the Post's logic, are those who, like good Indians, are either dead or nearly dead.—New York Tribune.

THEIR EDUCATION A DUTY

South American Republic Must Be Looked Upon as Wards of the United States.

Could we but wait. Time only is at fault. All men become good creatures—but so slow.

Congressman Harrison of New York does not agree with this. He would have the United States cease trying to play the part of the good Samaritan, friendly policeman, or zealous schoolmaster in Central America. He thinks political education would be wasted on Central Americans, and that they are irreclaimable, should be left to stew in their own juice, and be forever the slaves of petty tyrants. He is confident that the United States will be obliged to "retire with mortification from its efforts to maintain democratic governments in Central America. He says they cannot be maintained.

Nicaraguans, Guatemalans, et al. are rather unpromising material. Their political progress during nearly a hundred years of freedom from Spain has been slight. Their governmental methods are primitive and crude, far removed from the delicate and scientific Tammany methods to which Congresman Harrison is accustomed. The Central Americans use force where the Tammanyites use fraud. It will take the patience of years to wean them of insurrections, revolutions, and rebellions, and accustom them to orderly processes of the repeater and ballot box stuffer. But the policy which Congressman Harrison scoffs at is indorsed by the American people, and the United States will adhere to it in spite of one or another such mighty rebuffs.

The education of the Central Americans so that they may be enabled to maintain democratic governments is for the United States a matter of business as well as philanthropy. If they lived in Europe, Asia, or Africa, they could misgovern themselves as much as they pleased, but they are our next door neighbors. They are ill-trained young brothers who must be kept in order for the sake of the credit of the family. It will take laborious years to bring order out of the Central American chaos, but the United States has set out to do it, and will stick to it, undeterred by the gloomy predictions of the pessimistic Mr. Harrison.

Taft's Terse Warning.

President Taft's declaration concerning the respective standing of the law and business methods is the most forcible utterance on the subject yet made. It serves notice on the combined interests that their plea that the laws must be emasculated or their enforcement neglected to grant them an especial privilege will find no favor with the head of this administration. This is done in a single sentence, as follows:

"If the enforcement of the law is not consistent with the present methods of carrying on business, then it does not speak well for the present methods of conducting business, and they must be changed to conform to the law."

The President and Congress.

There is belief in certain quarters that congress, at this session, will not carry out all of the president's recommendations. It may not. They are numerous, and some of them relate to subjects requiring deep investigation, and are certain therefore to provoke protracted discussion. Congress is full of lawyers, and in the shaping of legislation lawyers are full of matter. And even with the greatest care, many laws are poorly drawn. But the president's program, if comprehensive, is sound, and in time the spirit of it all will be written into law. So far, his party is not opposing him in any leading policy to which he stands committed.

Reid.

If it is true, as reported, that Whitelaw Reid is to remain at his post for at least three years longer, the administration is to be congratulated on the decision. We have not had better service there than he has given us, and there has never been a time when a thoroughly fit man in the place was more necessary. Mr. Reid knows his business, and while he remains in commission all will be well with the interests intrusted to his care and attention.

Let the Voters Decide.

If we are approaching a change; if the Democracy is at last getting into a real stride; if we are on the eve of a spirited race—the whole course contested from "eend to eend"—not only will interest be quickened, but the country should benefit. Party government calls for at least two parties, and unless the minority is strong, the majority is certain to grow careless, and sometimes arrogant.—Washington Star.

It appears that the Taft administration has too much backbone and too much conscience to suit some powerful factors in Wall street affairs.

A Woman's Logic.

"Statistics show that one marriage in ten results in divorce. The number of divorces in these days is appalling."

"There ought to be a law passed that would entirely do away with them."

"That would be a difficult law to frame."

"Perfectly simple; just pass a law forbidding one marriage in ten."

The fellow who puts up a bluff at hustling makes the rest of us tired.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

ELLIS, OHIO'S G. O. P. BOSS

Wade H. Ellis, "trust buster" and old foe of the Standard Oil Company, is going to boss the Republican party in Ohio. He's going to do it in the interests of President Taft.

Democratis say Ellis resigned his job as assistant to the attorney general of the United States to return to Ohio, where he was attorney general several years, because Gov. Harmon with each passing day is showing himself a dangerous contender for the highest office in the gift of the people. Be that as it may, Mr. Ellis has taken charge of the G. O. P. in the state that has a habit of producing presidents.

The decision of Mr. Ellis to leave the attorney general's office was reached at a conference in the White House with the president and several Ohio politicians.

As he was leaving the White House Mr. Ellis was stopped by a member of the Ohio delegation in the house, who heard the news of his resignation with surprise.

"What induced you to do it?" the member inquired.

"Well, party expediency, largely. We are going to try to harmonize Ohio Republican factions."

"Harmonize!" exclaimed the Ohio statesman. "Isn't that rather an unhappy way to put it?"

Mr. Ellis looked puzzled for a moment; then he laughed. "In view of Gov. Harmon's prominence, I suppose it is," he assented. "Probably I'd better say that we hope to 'unify' the factions."

Mr. Ellis says he wants it clearly understood that his resignation does not mean that he "desires or expects to be a candidate for any office whatever, either now or later; nor," he adds, "will any influence I may have be used for or against any candidate for a Republican nomination in Ohio, and I have no doubt such nominations will express the fair, free choice of the Republicans of the state."

RETURNS FROM ANT-ARCTIC

Had Dr. Jean M. Charcot succeeded in reaching the south pole his feat would have been far greater than that of Commander Peary, discoverer of the "top of the earth," for it is said there are many difficulties to overcome in the antarctic regions that are not found in the arctic.

Dr. Charcot is a wealthy French scientist and a recognized explorer and France felt that the honor of discovering the "bottom of the world" had every chance of coming to her with a man so well equipped as Charcot making the attempt. But brief word has been flashed from Punta Arenas, the city farthest south on the South American continent, that Charcot had passed there on the Pourquoi Pas bound for home after failing to reach the south pole, although he has made some valuable discoveries in the antarctic regions. Pourquoi Pas, the name of Charcot's ship, in French means "Why not." Charcot left for the Antarctic in 1908 and was equipped with everything money could buy to help him find the pole.

There are no intelligent Eskimos in the Antarctic; no hardy dogs like the Eskimos have. There is little land that is not bleak and desolate. Walrus, narwhal, polar bear and smaller game like eider duck, ptarmigan and hare, are scarce at the south pole.

As opposed to the leads of water, which baffle north polar travelers, there is the huge, majestic ice barrier of the southernmost ocean.

There is nothing like this ice wall in all the world. Sheer and sharp it rises out of the ocean 300 feet high, its walls as smooth and as level as glass. The midnight sun, reflected against its sides, throws its sheen for hundreds of miles in the polar deep.

There was much suffering among Charcot's men during the many months in the Antarctic regions, scurvy and heart disease being the chief ailments. The scientific observations were conducted with the greatest care and thus the object of the expedition was in part realized.

Dr. Charcot found that the automobile is not adaptable to use in the antarctic regions. The great icebergs are impassable and he found it useless to attempt to get over or around them in the motor machines which he took along with him on the Pourquoi Pas.

The failure of Dr. Charcot to reach the goal has added new zest to the plans of the Shackleton and Scott expeditions in England and the proposed Peary trip in this country.

DIGS INTO CHICAGO GRAFT

Charles Edward Merriam, a University of Chicago political science professor, who "went into politics," became an alderman and then chairman of the "Chicago commission on city expenditures," is the leader of the investigation into charges of municipal graft, such as the alleged $45,000 shale rock steal of a city sewer contractor, "coal ring frauds," "smoke inspecting scandal," and other charges of graft alleged against the Chicago Fire Appliance Company, the Cummings Foundry Company, etc.

These companies and individuals, which have had dealings with the city and have been publicly charged with graft, will have a chance to explain to "the Merriam commission" just how much truth there is in these charges.

"Merriam is on the square and will give us an honest decision," is the sentiment often heard in Chicago.

Merriam has taken more than an academic interest in politics ever since he ceased to shine as a long distance runner at the State University of Iowa.

While at Columbia he made speeches in the first Low campaign. Afterwards he spent one year in Europe studying at Berlin and Paris and paying especial attention to the finances of the city of Berlin. He joined the political science department of the University of Chicago in 1900 as docent and has since written a volume on "The History of American Political Theories and Primary Elections."

The Merriam commission was created June 21, 1909, after a resolution providing for it had been introduced by the professor himself.

FOWLER, CANNON'S OLD FOE

Representative Charles N. Fowler of New Jersey, whose latest move in his fight against "Uncle Joe" Cannon has been a proposition to enlarge the rules committee and leave the speaker off of it, has been camping hard on Uncle Joe's trail ever since 1906.

Representative Fowler, who was then chairman of the house committee on banking and currency, had a "bankers' bill" which he has said since, with considerable emphasis, would have prevented the panic of 1907.

The speaker controlled the rules committee, however, and he refused to listen to Fowler. After the panic Fowler, out of his long experience as chairman of the banking committee, suggested the "credit currency" plan, the use of cashiers' checks, clearing house certificates, etc. This saved the day. Fowler was suggested as a candidate for speaker himself last November. He in reply addressed a letter to each member of the house and in it suggested that " the house elect a board of managers, which shall be charged with that direction of legislation which is now assumed by the speaker."

Mr. Fowler represents the Fifth New Jersey district in the house and is one of the hardest workers in congress. He is a native of Illinois, born at Lena, November 2, 1852. He was graduated from Yale in 1876 and from the Chicago Law school in 1878. He was first elected to the fifty-fourth congress and has never been defeated for the office.

TACK THIS UP

Prescription That Breaks Up the Worst Cold in a Day.

Every winter this prescription is published here and thousands have been benefited by it. "Get two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce of Concentrated Pine compound. Then get half a pint of good whiskey and put the other two ingredients into it. Take a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of this mixture after each meal and at bed time. Shake the bottle well each time." But be sure to get only the genuine Concentrated Pine. Each half ounce bottle comes in a tin screw-top case. Any druggist has it on hand or will quickly get it from the wholesale house. Many other pine extracts are impure and cause nausea.

A Pause in Devotions.

"Mabel," called her father, outside her bedroom door. There was no answer, so he called again. Still no reply. He pushed open the door, which was not completely shut, and reaching for the button, turned on the lights. Then he saw Mabel. She was kneeling at the side of her bed in her nightgown, in the attitude of prayer—the attitude, that is, as to kneeling. But she had raised her head at the interruption and paused in her devotions to blaze at him with a face flushed with impatience.

"Gee whiz, daddy! Can't a woman say her prayers?"

Then she bowed her head again, piously, and daddy, properly rebuked, slipped noiselessly away.

He Had No Objection.

"We—we want you to marry us," said the blushing young man, indicating a young woman with downcast eyes and smiling face who stood a step behind him.

"Come in," said the minister, and he endeavored to ease their embarrassment for a moment; but he soon decided that it was useless to try.

"Will you be married with a ring?" he inquired.

The young man turned a helpless gaze on his companion, and then looked at the minister.

"If you've got one to spare and it can come out o' the two dollars, I guess she'd like it," he said at last.—National Food Magazine.

To Check Ravages of Tuberculosis.

The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis declares that there are two ways of checking the ravages of tuberculosis among school children. The first way is to instruct every school child about the dangers of the disease and to show them how they themselves may prevent tuberculosis in their homes. The second method is to establish open air schools for all children who have tuberculosis or who are suspected cases, segregating them from the healthy children.

Opera the Great Leveler.

At one of the Wagner operas a few days ago a woman nudged her friend and said: "Who's that distinguished man bowing to you over there?" Her friend looked in the direction designated and smiled in a return greeting. "That's my butcher," she said. "I see him here quite often. When I go marketing in the morning we always discuss the opera. He's a German, you know, and really knows a lot about other things besides cutting meat."—New York Sun.

The Appetites of Kings.

The king of Spain makes up for this daily expenditure of activity by a tremendous appetite. I have observed, for that matter, that the majority of sovereigns are valiant trenchermen. Every morning of his life Alfonso XIII. has a good rump steak and potatoes for his first breakfast, often preceded by eggs and sometimes followed by salad and fruit.—From Recollections of M. Paoli in McClure's.

A GOOD CHANGE

A Change of Food Works Wonders

The wrong food and drink causes a lot of trouble in this world. To change the food is the first duty of every person that is ill, particularly from stomach and nervous troubles. As an illustration: A lady in Mo. has, with her husband, been brought around to health again by leaving off coffee and some articles of food that did not agree with them. They began using Postum and Grape-Nuts food. She says:

"For a number of years I suffered with stomach and bowel trouble which kept getting worse unutil I was very ill most of the time. About four years ago I left off coffee and began taking Postum. My stomach and bowels improved right along, but I was so reduced in flesh and so nervous that the least thing would overcome me.

"Then I changed my food and began using Grape-Nuts in addition to Postum. I lived on these two principally for about four months. Day by day I gained in flesh and strength until now the nervous trouble has entirely disappeared and I feel that I owe my life and health to Postum and Grape-Nuts.

"Husband is 73 years old and he was troubled for a long time with occasional cramps, and slept badly. Finally I prevailed upon him to leave off coffee and take Postum. He had stood out for a long time, but after he tried Postum for a few days he found that he could sleep and that his cramps disappeared. He was satisfied and has never gone back to coffee.

"I have a brother in California who has been using Postum for several years; his whole family use it also because they have had such good results from it."

Look in pkgs. for the little book, "The Road to Wellville." "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

"The Man I Love!"

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with the shipwreck of the steamer on which Miss Genevieve Leslie, an American heiress, Lord Winthrope, an Englishman, and Tom Blake, a brusque American, were passengers. The three were tossed upon an uninhabited island and were the only ones not drowned. Blake, shunned on the boat, because of his roughness, became a hero as preserver of the helpless pair. The Englishman was suing for the hand of Miss Leslie. Winthrope wasted his last match on a cigarette, for which he was scored by Blake. All three constructed hats to shield themselves from the sun. They then feasted on cocoanuts, the only procurable food. Miss Leslie faced an unpleasant situation. Blake recovered his surveyor's magnifying glass, thus insuring fire. He started a jungle fire, killing a large leopard and smothering several cubs. In the leopard's cavern they built a small home. They gained the cliffs by burning the bottom of a tree until it fell gainst the heights. The trio secured ggs from the cliffs. Miss Leslie's white skirt was decided upon as a signal. Miss Leslie made a dress from the leopard skin. Overhearing a conversation between Blake and Winthrope, Miss Leslie became frightened. Winthrope became ill with fever. Blake was poisoned by a fish and almost died. Jackals attacked the camp that night, but were driven off by Genevieve. Blake constructed an animal trap. It killed a hyena. On a tour the trio discovered honey and oysters. Miss Leslie was attacked by a poisonous snake. Blake killed it and saved its poison to kill game. For the second time Winthrope was attacked by fever. He and Blake disagreed. The latter made a strong door for the private compartment of Miss Leslie's cave home. A terrible storm raged that night. Winthrope stole into her room, but she managed to swing her door closed in time. Winthrope was badly hurt. He died the following morning. The storm tore down their distress flag, so a new one was swung from a bamboo pole. Miss Leslie helped in covering Winthrope's grave with stones. Genevieve took a strong liking to Blake. On exploration tour they were attacked by a lion.

The lion stilled his roars and crouched as if to spring, snarling and grinning with rage and uncertainty. His eyes, unaccustomed to the glare of the mid-day sun, blinked incessantly, though he followed the man's every movement, his snarls deepening into growls at the slightest change of attitude.

In his blind animal rage Blake had forgotten that the purpose of his lateral advance was to place as great a distance as possible between him and the girl before the clash. Yet instinct kept him moving along his spiral course, on the chance that he might catch his foe off his guard.

Suddenly the lion half rose and stretched forward, sniffing. There was an uneasy whining note in his growls. Blake let the club slip from beneath his arm and drew his bow until the arrow-head lay upon his thumb. His outstretched arm was rigid as a bar of steel. So tense and alert were all his nerves that he knew he could drive home both arrows and still have time to swing his club before the beast was upon him.

A puff of wind struck against his back and swept on the nostrils of the lion, laden with the odor of man. The beast uttered a short, startled roar, and, whirling about, leaped away into the jungle so quickly that Blake's arrow flashed past a full yard behind.

The second arrow was on the string before the first had struck the ground. But the lion had vanished in the grass. With a yell, Blake dashed on across to the nearest point of the jungle. As he ran he drew the burning glass from his fob and flipped it open ready for use. If the lion had turned behind the sheltering grass stems he was too cowardly to charge out again. Within a minute the jungle border was a wall of roaring flame.

The grass, long since dead, and bone-dry with the days of tropical sunshine since the cyclone, flared up before the wind like gunpowder. Even against the wind the fire ate its way along the ground with fearful rapidity, trailing behind it an upwhirling vortex of smoke and flame. No living creature could have burst through that belt of fire.

A wave of fierce heat sent Blake staggering back, scorched and blistered. There was no exultance in his bearing. For the moment all thought of the lion was swallowed up in awe of his own work. He stared at the hell of leaping, roaring flames from beneath his upraised arm. To the north sparks and lighted wisps of grass driven by the gale had already fired the jungle half way to the farther ridge.

Step by step Blake drew back. His heel struck against something soft. He looked down and saw Miss Leslie lying on the sand, white and still. She had fainted, overcome by fear or by the unendurable heat. The heat must have stupefied him as well. He stared at her, dull-eyed, wondering if she was dead. His brain cleared. He sprang over to where the flask lay beside the remnants of the lunch.

He was dashing the last drops of the tepid water in her face when she moaned and her eyelids began to flutter. He flung down the flask and fell to chafing her wrist.

"Tom!" she moaned.

"Yes, Miss Jenny, I'm here. It's all right," he answered.

"Have I had a sunstroke? Is that why it seems so— I can hardly breathe—"

"It's all right, I tell you. Only a little bonfire I touched off. Guess you must have fainted, but it's all right now."

"It was silly of me to faint. But when I saw that dreadful thing leap—"

She faltered and lay shuddering. Fearful that she was about to swoon again Blake slapped her hand between his palms with stinging force.

"You're it!" he shouted. "The joke's on you! Kitty jumped just the other way, and he won't come back in a hurry with that fire to head him off. Jump up now and we'll do a jig on the strength of it."

She attempted a smile, and a trace of color showed in her cheeks. With an idea that action would further her recovery he drew her to a sitting position, stepped quickly behind, and, with his hands beneath her elbows, lifted her upright. But she was still too weak and giddy to stand alone. As he released his grip she swayed and would have fallen had he not caught her arm.

"Steady!" he admonished. "Brace up; you're all right."

"I'm—I'm just a little dizzy," she murmured, clinging to his shoulder. "It will pass in a minute. It's so silly, but I'm that way—Tom, I—I think you are the bravest man—"

"Yes, yes—but that's not the point. Leave go now, like a sensible girl. It's about time to hit the trail."

He drew himself free, and without a glance at her blushing face began to gather up their scattered outfit. His hat lay where he had weighted it down with the cocoanut. He tossed the nut into the skin bag and jammed the hat on his head, pulling the brim far down over his eyes. When he had fetched his club he walked back past the girl with his eyes averted.

"Come on," he muttered.

Inside the barricade Blake was waiting to close the opening. She crept through and rose to catch him by the sleeve.

"Tom, look at me," she said. "Once I was most unjust to you in my thoughts. I wronged you. Now I must tell you that I think you are the bravest—the noblest man—"

"Get away!" he exclaimed, and he shook off her hand roughly. "Don't be a fool! You don't know what you're talking about."

"But I do, Tom. I believe that you are—"

"I'm a blackguard—do you hear?"

"No blackguard is brave. The way you faced that terrible beast—"

"Yes, blackguard—to've gone and shown to you that I—to've let you say a single word—Can't you see? Even if I'm not what you call a gentleman, I thought I knew how any man ought to treat a woman—but to go and let you know, before we'd got back among people!"

"But—but, Tom, why not, if we—"

"No!" he retorted, harshly. "I'm going now to pile up wood on the cliff for a beacon fire. In the morning I'll start making that catamaran—"

"No, you shall not— You shall not go off and leave me, and—and risk your life! I can't bear to think of it! Stay with me, Tom—dear! Even if a ship never came—"

He turned resolutely, so as not to see her blushing face.

"Come now, Miss Leslie," he said in a dry, even tone; "don't make it so awfully hard. Let's be sensible, and shake hands on it like two real comrades—"

She struck frantically at his outstretched hand.

"Keep away—I hate you!" she cried.

Before he could speak she was running up the cleft.

CHAPTER XXV.

In Double Salvation.

WHEN, an hour or more after dawn the next morning, the girl slowly drew open her door and came out of the cave Blake was nowhere in sight. She sighed, vastly relieved, and hastened across to bathe her flushed face in the spring. Stopping every few moments to listen for his step down the cleft she gathered up a hamper of food and fled to the tree-ladder.

As she drew herself up on the cliff she noticed a thin column of smoke rising from the last smouldering brands of a beacon fire that had been built in the midst of the bird colony on the extreme outer edge of the headland. She did not, however, observe that, while the smoke column streamed up from the fire directly skyward beyond it there was a much larger volume of smoke, which seemed to have eddied down the cliff face and was now rolling up into view from out over the sea. She gave no heed to this, for the sight of the beacon had instantly alarmed her with the possibility that Blake was still on the headland, and would imagine that she was seeking him.

She paused, her cheeks aflame. But the only sign of Blake that she could see was the fire itself. She reflected that he might very well have left before dawn. As likely as not he had descended at the north end of the cleft and had gone off to the river to start his catamaran. At the thought all the color ebbed from her cheeks and left her white and trembling. Again she stood hesitating. With a sigh she started on toward the signal staff.

She was close upon the border of the bird colony when Blake sat up and she found herself staring into his blinking eyes.

"Hello!" he mumbled, drowsily. He sprang up wide awake, and flushing with the guilty consciousness of what he had done. "Look at the sun—way up! Didn't mean to oversleep, Miss Leslie. You see I was up pretty late tending the beacon. But of course that's no excuse—"

"Don't!" she exclaimed. There were tears in her eyes; yet she smiled as she spoke. "I know what you mean by 'pretty late.' You've been up all night."

"No, I haven't. Not all night—"

"To be sure! I quite understand, Mr. Thomas Blake! Now sit down and eat this luncheon."

"Can't. Haven't time. I've got to get to the river and set to work. I'll get some jerked beef and eat it on the way. You see—"

"Tom!" she protested.

"It's for you," he rejoined, and his lips closed together resolutely.

He was stepping past her, when over the seaward edge of the cliff there came a sound like the yell of a raging sea monster.

"Siren!" shouted Blake, whirling about.

The cloud of smoke beyond the cliff end was now rolling up more to the left. He dashed away towards the north edge of the cliff as though he intended to leap off into space. The girl ran after him as fast as she could over the loose stones. Before she had covered half the distance she saw him halt on the very brink of the cliff and begin to wave and shout like a madman. A few steps farther on she caught sight of the steamer. It was lying close in, only a little way off the north point of the headland.

Even as she saw the vessel, its siren responded to Blake's wild gestures with a series of joyous screams. There could be no mistake. He had been seen. Already they were letting go anchor, and there was a little crowd of men gathering about one of the boats. Blake turned and started on a run for the cliff. But Miss Leslie darted before him, compelling him to halt.

"Wait!" she cried, her eyes sparkling with happy tears. "Tom, it's come now. You needn't—"

"Let me by! I'm going to meet them. I want to—"

But she put her hands upon his shoulders.

"Tom!" she whispered, "let it be now, before any one—anything can possibly come between us! Let it be a part of our life here—here, where I've learned how brave and true a real man can be!"

"And then have him prove himself a sneak!" he cried. "No; I won't, Jenny! I've got you to think of. Wait till I've seen your father. Ten to one he'll not hear of it—he'll cut you off without a cent. Not but what I'd be glad myself; but you're used to luxuries, girlie, and I'm a poor man. I can't give them to you—"

She laid a hand on his mouth and smiled up at him in tender mockery.

"Come, now, Mr. Blake; you're not very complimentary. After surviving my cooking all these weeks, don't you think I might do, at a pinch, for a poor man's wife?"

"No, Jenny!" he protested, trying to draw back. "You oughtn't to decide now. When you get back among your friends things may look different. Think of your society friends! Wait till you see me with other men—gentlemen! I'm just a rough, uncultured, ordinary—"

"Hush!" she cried, and she again placed her hand on his mouth. "You sha'n't say such cruel things about Tom—my Tom—the man I trust—that I—"

Her arms slipped about his neck and her eyes shone up into his with tender radiance.

"Don't!" he begged, hoarsely. "'Tain't fair I—I can't stand it!"

"The man I love!" she whispered.

He crushed her to him in his great arms.

"My little girl!—dear little girl!" he repeated, and he pressed his lips to her hair.

She snuggled her face closer against his shoulder and replied in a very small voice: "I—I suppose you know that ship captains can m-marry people."

"But I haven't even a job yet!" he exclaimed. "Suppose your father—"

"Please listen!" she pleaded. There was a sound like suppressed sobbing.

"What is it?" he ventured, and he listened, greatly perturbed. The muffled voice sounded very meek and plaintive: "I'll try to do my part, Mr. Blake—really I will! I—I hope we can manage to struggle along—somehow. You know, I have a little of my own. It's only three—three million; but—"

"What!" he demanded, and he held her out at arm's length, to stare at her in frowning bewilderment. "If I'd known that, I'd—"

"You'd never have given me a chance to—to propose to you, you dear old silly!" she cried, her eyes dancing with tender mirth. "See here!"

She turned from him, and back again, and held up a withered, crumpled flower. He looked, and saw that it was the amaryllis blossom.

"You—kept it!"

"Because—because, even then, then, down in the bottom of my heart, I had begun to realize—to know what you were like—and of course that meant— Tom, tell me! Do you think I'm utterly shameless? Do you blame me for being the one to—to—"

"Blame you!" he cried. He paused to put a finger under her chin and raise her down-bent face. His eyes were very blue, but there was a twinkle in their depths. "Oh, yes; it was dreadful, wasn't it? But I guess I've no complaint to file just now."

THE END.

Trying.

If there is anything on earth that will try all the Christian graces of the average man, it is to crawl into a union suit on a chilly morning only to discover that the washerwoman has turned it wrong side out.

Railway Schools.

Unique among railroad schools is that which has just been established at Altoona, Pa., by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the management of which has arranged with the Pennsylvania State College to send professors to Altoona two days a week to give instruction to apprentices employed in the railroad shops. Special quarters have been constructed for the school rooms.

The plan with which the Pennsylvania Railroad is experimenting is to educate apprentices along the lines of work which they are following, with the view that this instruction will result in their becoming better and more efficient workmen. At the same time, their records in the school will give the employing officers a better opportuaity to judge of their quaifications. From the ability shown in the school and with the records in the shops, the officers can determine upon the fitness of the apprentices for advancement in the service. The professors will make a monthly report on the progress made by each one attending the school.

The membership of the first class will be composed of apprentices of the fourth year who have shown ability in their work and a disposition to better their education. It will be optional with the young men whether or not they will take the course, but after entering the school attendance will be compulsory. The first-class will be limited to thirty apprentices.

The course of instruction, while not be definitely determined upon, will, in a general way, consist of the various elementary principles of mechanics, mechanism and materials, and simple computations based upon these subjects. The school was opened on March 1st, and will continue in session until the first of June. Sessions will be held on Tuesdays and Fridays, two hours each day, from one o'clock to three o'clock.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invariably brings relief to women suffering from chronic constipation, headache, biliousness, dizziness, sallowness of the skin and dyspepsia. Sold by all dealers.

Free If It Fails.

Your Money Back If You are not Satisfied with the Medicine we Recommend.

We are so positive that our remedy will permanently relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine at our expense should it fail to produce satisfactory results.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxatives or cathartic do much harm. They cause a re action, irritate and weaken the bowels and tend to make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is dangerous.

Constipation is caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or descending colon. To expect permanent relief you must therefore tone up and strengthen these organs and restore them to healthier activity.

The discovery of the active principal of our remedy involved the labor of world's greatest research chemists. As an active agent it possesses the valuable qualities of the best known intestinal tonics as well as being particularly pleasant and prompt in its results.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our recommendation. They are exceedingly pleasant to take, being eaten like candy, and are ideal for children, delicate persons and old folks, as well as the robust. They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on other associate organs or glands. They do not purge, cause excessive looseness nor create any inconvenience whatever. They may be taken any time, day or night. They will positively relieve chronic or habitual constipation, if not of surgical variety, and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, if taken with regularity for any length of time. They come in two sizes of packages, 15 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents. Sold in Emporium only at our store—the Rexall store—The Emporium Drug Co

Fully nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism is simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment. All that is needed to afford relief is the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. Give it a trial. You are certain to be pleased with the quick relief which it affords. Sold by all druggists.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are safe, sure and reliable, and have been praised by thousands of women who have been restored to health through their gentle aid and curative properties. Sold by all druggists.

Heed The Warning.

Many Emporium People Have Done So.

When the kidneys are sick they give unmistakable warnings that should not be ignored. By examining the urine and treating the kidneys upon the first sign of disorder, many days of suffering may be saved. Sick kidneys expel a dark, ill-smelling urine, full of "brick dust" sediment and painful in passage. Sluggish kidneys cause a dull pain in the small of the back, headaches, dizzy spells, tired, languid feelings and frequent rheumatic twinges.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only; they cure sick kidneys, and rid the blood of uric poison. If you suffer from any of the above symptoms you use no better remedy.

Emporium people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. E. L. Rendt, Fifth Street, Emporium, Pa., says: "For years kidney trouble kept me in misery. My back ached constantly and I could not rest well on account of the acute pains across my loins. My kidneys caused me much annoyance and I felt miserable in every way. Reading about Doan's Kidney Pills, I obtained a box from Taggart's Drug Store and commenced their use. Prompt relief was received and I now have no cause for complaint. I have often recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Talk About Sleeping.

Women are like men when it comes to sleeping. Plenty of restful sleep makes a man strong and vigorous, and it makes a woman happy and beautiful. But both men and women can procure restful sleep by using Sexine Pills. It is well-known that nervousness and overwork prevent sleep. It is equally well known that Sexine Pills produce that delightful relaxation that folds one's tired limbs in Nature's arms while the unconscious body draws new life and vigor. Sexine Pills are the perfect tonic. They are guaranteed. They cost $1 a box; six boxes $5, with full guarantee inclosed. Address or call on R. C. Dodson, druggist, Emporium, Pa., where they sell all the principal remedies and do not substitute.

Not all of the flowers should be left for the funeral. If a man dererves well from his friends after death, he deserves equally well when with them, wisely remarks the Titusville Herald. One little flower pinned upon a coat that holds a living man, is worth more than all the banks of roses that ever shed their fragrance over a cold and lifeless form. Likewise it may be said that the kind work, the hearty hand clasp, the assurances of friend, ship, and assistance are of no value when your friends has passed over the divide and down into the valley beyond your sight. Those things are worth while only when he knows and feels and appreciates.

Over Forty Years in Harness.

Editor H. H. Mullin of the Emporium PRESS recently rounded out his forty-second year as editor of that paper, and he made it the occasion for soliloquy during which he declared that if he were a Carnegie or a Morgan he would "do something grand" for the community, whereupon the Lock Haven Pa., Express remarks: "He doesn't need to be a Carnegie nor a Morgan either. To have been a conscientious, painstaking, diligent editor for forty-two years, as Mr. Mullin has, is a combination of qualities that amounts to grandness."—The American Press, Buffalo, N. Y.

Letter From Herkie Jones.

MR. H. H. MULLIN, EDITOR PRESS:

Dear Friend:—As we have closed our first term, and are about to enter upon the second, thought I would write you a few lines to let you know how we are getting along. We have had our examinations and Dorr Spencer and I passed with very good averages and hope to to do equally as well this coming term. We like our school and surroundings very well, and as you know, this city is spoken of as the city of schools and churches.

The Valparaiso University is considered one of the largest of its kind, there being about 3500 students here.

I suppose we have seen more snow and ice than we ever saw in Penn'a, being located only twelve miles from Lake Michigan.

The city has two beautiful lakes, paved streets, some beautiful buildings, including a fine court house, and I dare say is as busy a city, of its size, as there is in this section.

Since we have been here we have had the great honor and pleasure of hearing the following speakers: John H. Hopkins, Bishop of the Episcopal Church, of Chicago; Mr. Winship, of Boston; Mr. Kies, of Hartford, a great educator of this country; S. S. McClure, publisher of McClure's Magazine, and the Governor of West Virginia and several noted educators from that state. We also heard Elijah, one of the greatest musicals ever written.

Dorr and I, for three months, have been considered moss backs, (first term), but we are now distinguished as Pa. Kinsey pigs, (second term) and we mean to and are always ready, to apply our name.

We expect to arrive home about May 30, and we shall be certainly glad to get back among the hills. It seems as though we always find plenty to do and it will be but a little while until we hear the longed for and welcome dinner bell, and that is one class we always make it our aim to be present at. I remain

Your sincere friend,
HERKIE B. JONES.

Printed Evelopes Barred.

The sale of envelopes by the government with return addresses printed upon them is prohibited by an amendment adopted to the postoffice appropriation bill in the house. Advocates of the prohibition against the sale of printed envelopes claimed that the government had no right to enter into competition with private printers.

First "Iceless" Fountain for Emporium.

To Mr. J. B. Meisel belongs the distinction of installing the first iceless sodafountain in Emporium. This apparatus marks a distinct change from the old style fountain and is a recent creation of fountain builders art. There are many towns a great deal latger than Emporium, that this fountain is comparatively new to and Mr. Meisel is the first one within 300 miles of here.

The fountain is 12 feet long and is ornamented with a beautiful onyx draft stand; behind the counter you will find the "works" built of solid White Italian Marbel, the syrup jars are of white porcelain, the fruit flavors are drawn automatically through silver pumps, giving the r equired amount with one action of the plunger.

The Ice cream cans are placed in a solid marble compartment and the fruit juices and carbonated water is kept cold from the brine, this being the only part necessary to ice, thus avoiding a great deal of handling and dirt.

The work boards are of marble and solid German silver and have a great advantage over the zinc and copper ones ordinarily used.

The sanitary features has been observed throughout as well as the operation which simplifies the labor in dispensing. More could be said but you must see it to appreciate its usefulness.

The back bar is of mahogany construction with a French plate mirror 12x4 feet.

The opening will be announced later, when suitable souveniers will be given to patrons.

Mr. Meisel has spent considerable time through the east getting new ideas for serving the newest things in ice cream, etc., and the best shall not be too good for Emporium.

Delayed Attention Costs Money.

Your house wears out if not painted. It costs more to repair it than it costs to paint it. It don't cost much to paint with the L. & M. Paint, becausse 4 gallons of L. & M. Paint and 3 gallons of Linseed Oil makes seven gallons of ready-for-use paint at a cost of about $1 30 per gallon. You can mix yourself. Thirty-five years use in every part of the United States proves it. Atlantic City & Pittsburgh Fence Tests, made by the Master painters Association, prove it. Sold by Harry S. Lloyd, Emporium, Pa.

CLASS NO. ONE.

Noah's Anchors.

A story of a pair of anchors is told in the book entitled "To Kairwan the Holy."

Kairwan is the Mecca of the west. It is a city so sacred that women are allowed to move about in it but very little. One of the interesting sights is the Mosque of Emir Ben Said Bon Muphtah. This mosque, with its six melon shaped domes, is the tomb of a most amusing old Moslem who died about the middle of the last century. He had great power over the bey and managed affairs according to his own pleasure. This Moslem got possession in Tunis of four large anchors which probably belonged to some old men-of-war abandoned on account of stress of weather. The gentleman with the long name was not content with any such prosaic explanation of their origin. By means of the labor of 500 Arabs he had the anchors dragged from Tunis and deposited in front of his house. The transportation took five months. He then declared them to be the anchors by which Noah fastened the ark to Mount Ararat. The relics are now in the mosque of their former owner and are regarded as holy.

His Rules of Golf.

A lawyer of considerable prominence took up the game of golf. Some of his friends volunteered chapters of advice, while another presented to the beginner a book of rules. After completing his first round the counselor was asked if he had mastered the rules. The perspiring lawyer realized the sarcasm of the remark, but proved equal to the occasion. "The rules? Oh, they are quite simple," he replied. "There are two I know of, and to my mind they are the most important. You must hit the ball with your club, and after you have hit it you must find it, of course, before you hit it again. It will take an honest man several weeks to master these two rules. After driving the ball you must hit it wherever it lies. Good lies are as important in golf as in fishing. Losing a ball costs you two strokes and the price of the ball. Hitting a caddie with the ball is justifiable homicide."—New York Tribune.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I was troubled with falling and inflammation, and the doctors said I could not get well unless I had an operation. I knew I could not stand the strain of one, so I wrote to you sometime ago about my health and you told me what to do. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier I am to-day a well woman."—Mrs. WILLIAM AHRENS, 988 W. 21st St., Chicago, Ill.

WESTERN CANADA

What J. J. Hill, the Great Railroad Magnate, Says About its Wheat-Producing Power:

"The greatest need of this country [United States] in another generation or two will be the providing of homes for its people and producing sufficient for them. The days of our prominence as a wheat exporting country are gone. Canada is to be the great wheat country."

This great railroad magnate is taking advantage of the situation by extensive railway building to the wheat fields of Western Canada.

Upwards of 125 Million Bushels of Wheat were harvested in 1909. Average of the three provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba will be upwards of 23 bushels per acre.

Millinery Styles

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

IN SPITE of all that is said about the fickleness of fashion, there are some hats that are always in style. Year after year, indeed, decade after decade, sees little change in them, either in shape or size, and none in texture. There is that most beautiful of hats, "the Panama," which for generations was made in about one shape for men and women. It is only within the last three years that the heavy buyers have been able to persuade the native makers to vary their model and produce a little variety in shape. This a doubtful advantage, for the trimmer takes the good, old forms and cleverly modifies them to the changing ideas of the passing season.

Besides the Panama there is the beautiful Leghorn "flat." It has been produced for generations. With soft, flowing lines and a crown of normal size, and woven so fine that its body is as flexible as cloth, it is altogether so excellent that there is no use in looking for anything to excell it in simple beauty. The Leghorn is now blocked by the manufacturers into all sorts of shapes, but the flat brim and medium-sized crown lose nothing by comparison with newer forms. The clever trimmer takes the Leghorn flat and manipulates it at will, changing its outlines to suit the vagaries of her patrons' fancy, or her own. But she will never improve upon the lovely lines of the original shape. The day will not dawn within our time, when this beautiful hat will be out of style.

The same hat has its outlines rendered a little rigid and its underbrim faced with a demi-facing of black velvet. A wreath of big, full-blown roses and foliage adorn it. It simply spells the summer girl. It is associated in our minds with girlhood, and season after season appeals to us with undiminished charm.

Besides the Leghorn there are the Milan braids and the beautiful diaphanous Neapolitans, all made in the "flat" shape with trifling variations in the shape of the crown from season to season. The Milan has more body, that is, it is heavier in texture than the others and is therefore more used for general utility. Such a hat is shown with a mass of chrysanthemums about the crown and a wing at the side.

The initial expense of a fine hat in either of these weaves is money well spent. They are things of beauty and even capricious Fashion seems to regard them as joys forever.

EVENING DRESS.

We show an exceedingly dainty dress here, suitable for ninon, crepe-de-chine, or any soft material. The upper part is draped on to a princess lining, which continues as far as the hips; the skirt part is then gathered, and set to the edge of the princess, the joining being covered with bugle trimming. On the bodice it is arranged at the edge of chemisette, taken down to the waist on the right side. Small puffs of material form the sleeves, trimmed with crossings of the trimming, and set to bands of the same.

Materials required: Five yards ninon 44 inches wide, 5½ yards trimming, half yard lace.

The New Shades for Spring.

Elephant gray, gold ochre, burnt bread, laurel green, raspberry and twilight pink are some of the colors in which smart frocks for southern wear have made their appearance.

PROPER USE OF ANTIQUES

For Best Effects, the Articles Should Have a Room Exclusively to Themselves.

Those who rummage the second-hand stores and attics for old furniture and bric-a-brac often obtain what they are looking for, then pay a big price to have it prepared for use, and put it just where it does not belong. That is why antique articles look shoddy in so many homes. Women who are not good judges will pick up the worst-looking old piece of furniture imaginable, drape it with chintz and call it—beautiful. One way to use antiques properly is to have an "antique room." Of course, a pair of old andirons can be used in any open fireplace and the glass-trimmed candlesticks are ornamental in the dining room, despite the fact that candles seldom are used for lighting the tables. It is principally of furniture that one must be careful. Do not put an old walnut settee, chair and marble-topped stand in a room with a mission table and wicker chair, and do not adorn your walls with pink cherubs and expect a mystic glow to make that room look enchanting. It will look more like Vesuvius had an upheaval there. The best taste is exhibited to-day in rooms simply arranged, even though extremely small. Antiques should be separated from the modern furniture like sheep from the goats, or everyone who goes into your house will depart with a feeling that chaos has found habotation beneath your roof.

New Embroideries.

There is a present fad for lace and embroidery in combination.

This is little more than a revival of a fashion of two or three seasons ago.

The designs, too, are familiar.

One sees the same crescent-shape applique, the oval medallions and the long, tablike motifs.

Women possessing trimmings of this kind should bring them to light and make use of them.

The blind or satin stitch embroideries combined with imitation Irish are perhaps the most popular.

A Rug Hint.

Rugs have a tiresome way of curling up at the corners, which spoils their appearance, and in the end the corners get torn away. To provide against this, directly a rug is bought bind it on the under edge with stout holland or furniture webbing.—Woman's Life.

NATURAL MISTAKE.

The Boy—I didn't wear any.

IN AGONY WITH ECZEMA

"No tongue can tell how I suffered for five years with itching and bleeding eczema, until I was cured by the Cuticura Remedies, and I am so grateful I want the world to know, for what helped me will help others. My body and face were covered with sores. One day it would seem to be better, and then break out again with the most terrible pain and itching. I have been sick several times, but never in my life did I experience such awful suffering as with this eczema. I had made up my mind that death was near at hand, and I longed for that time when I would be at rest. I had tried many different doctors and medicines without success, and my mother brought me the Cuticura Remedies, insisting that I try them. I began to feel better after the first bath with Cuticura Soap, and one application of Cuticura Ointment.

"I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and have taken four bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, and consider myself well. This was nine years ago and I have had no return of the trouble since. Any person having any doubt about this wonderful cure by the Cuticura Remedies can write to my address. Mrs. Altie Etson, 93 Inn Road, Battle Creek, Mich., Oct. 16, 1909."

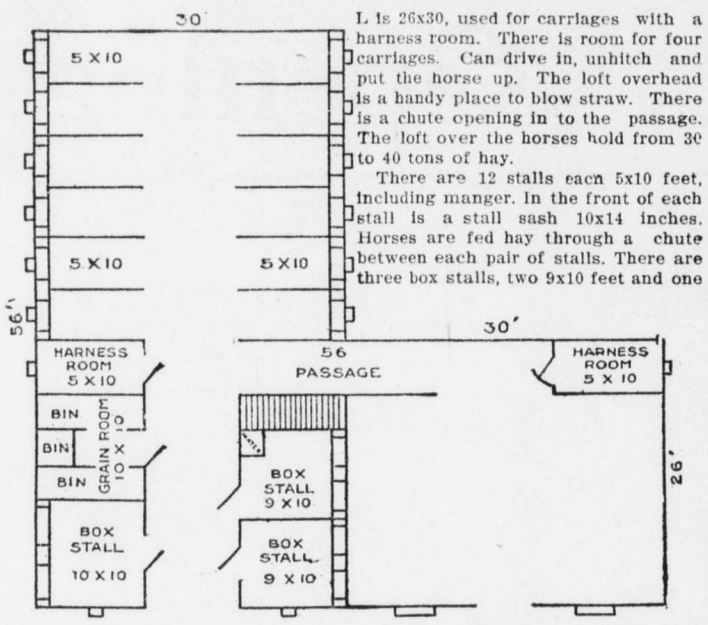
HORSE-BARN PLAN WITH SPACE FOR CARRIAGES

Intended for Farm of from Two to Four Hundred Acres Where from Eight to Fourteen Animals Are Kept.



Horse Barn 30x56 Feet; Carriage Room 30x26 Feet; Plain or Hip Roof.

L is 26x30, used for carriages with a harness room. There is room for four carriages. Can drive in, unhitch and put the horse up. The loft overhead is a handy place to blow straw. There is a chute opening in to the passage. The loft over the horses hold from 30 to 40 tons of hay.

There are 12 stalls each 5x10 feet, including manger. In the front of each stall is a stall sash 10x14 inches. Horses are fed hay through a chute between each pair of stalls. There are three box stalls, two 9x10 feet and one 10x10 feet. The boxes are made with double chutes and two grain boxes, so can be used for two horses when necessary.

There is a room for work harnesses. Under the stairway is a water tank. It is built with an L to the right of the stairway 16x16 inches, where the horses drink. This L comes out of the adjoining box.

There is a granary 10x10 feet, with two bins. The granary and harness rooms, also the box stalls, are lighted by stall sashes in each.

I would not think it good economy of room to keep carriages in the horse barn, but it is much more convenient to drive in and unhitch under cover.

I am sending a rough drawing patterned mostly after our horse barn, with some later ideas added, writes C. C. Curtis in Hoard's Dairyman.

This barn is intended for a farm of from two to four hundred acres where from eight to fourteen horses are kept and several colts are raised each year.

The main barn is 30x56 feet, and the

MANAGING THE YOUNG COLT

Begin the Training Early and Use Firm But Gentle Methods —Exercise Care Not to Frighten Him.

(BY R. B. RUSHING.)

When the colt is a few days old I put a strong, pliable halter on its head, but never try to lead it at first, simply put the halter on every day until it does not care for it.

After the colt is thoroughly accustomed to the halter, put a rope on the halter and pull just a little and he will soon learn to come when you pull on the rope.

When leading him around out of doors hold to the chin piece of the halter so as to keep him from rearing up, as he will likely do.

I believe in teaching colts to wear harness very young. Of course it should be very light harness.

At weaning time put a strong halter on the colt; tie him to the manger and watch him so as to teach him not to break loose. If he pulls back speak kindly to him and pat him and he will soon quit and stand quietly.

When he is broken to stand hitched put lines on him, but walk at his shoulders at first so as to keep him from getting frightened. Every time you take him out walk further back until you can walk behind him and teach him to turn back at your voice.

Drive the colt around the house and barn, showing him papers; drive him through water, show him umbrellas, and, in fact, most everything that he is likely to see when traveling around so he will not be afraid of them when he becomes grown.

When about one year old the regular single harness may be put on the colt. Leave it on him for a few hours so as to get him used to the crupper, and when you come into the stable again speak to him gently and take the harness off, pulling the backband all the way down to the tail gently and then he will not be afraid of it.

When the colt is quite young teach him to stop and start at your command and then when he is first put in harness to work he will know what you mean when you want him to stop or start.

Some Weights and Measures.

Here are some facts worth remembering: Fifty pounds of butter make one firkin; 100 pounds of fish make one quintal; 200 pounds of beef or pork make one barrel; five pounds make one keg; 100 pounds make one cask; 25 pounds make one barrel of soap; 280 pounds make one barrel of salt; four inches make one hand; 640 acres make one square mile, and 36 square miles make one township.

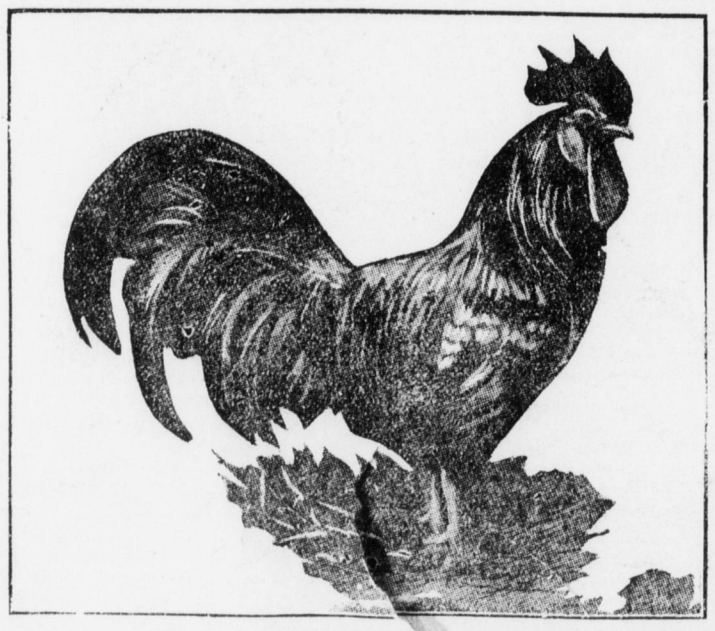
Training Horses.

It is claimed by those who have trained many horses that, taking the colt when training first begins, they can be trained to walk over four miles an hour. The walking gait is the most important one to the farm and road horse. The mistake with many in training young horses is that they are too soon put to trotting, which is a gait they more readily learn than fast walking.

Drying Timbers.

After timbers have been cut from the log they should be dried as rapidly and evenly as possible so as to remove the moisture and prevent checks. Wood should not be placed in contact with the ground until it has been thoroughly dried; otherwise some fungus will enter and cause rapid decay.

SINGLE COMB BROWN LEGHORN



If it be true that "handsome is as handsome does," the brown Leghorn is doubly beautiful. It is a laying breed par excellence, says Orange Judd Farmer. Next to that it is eminent as a forager and a converter of waste food into abundance of eggs—large, white-shelled ones that command an extra price with the private custom trade. Strictly speaking, the Leghorn is the egg-business bird, and as such it commends itself to the farmer. A few common hens, or an incubator, are needed for hatching, because the Leghorns usually are too intent on laying to be bothered by raising families.

BURDENS LIFTED FROM BAD BACKS

Weary is the back that bears the burden of kidney ills. There's no rest nor peace for the man or woman who has a bad back. The distress begins in early morning. You feel lame and not refreshed. It's hard to get out of bed. It hurts to stoop to tie your shoes. All day the ache keeps up. Any sudden movement sends sharp twinges through the back. It is torture to stoop or straighten. At night the sufferer retires to toss and twist and groan. Backache is kidney ache—a throbbing, dull aching in the kidneys. Plasters or liniments won't do. You must get at the cause, inside.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS CURE SICK KIDNEYS

TWICE-TOLD TESTIMONY
A Cure of Severe Kidney Disease Verified By Test of Time

William M. Sears, 429 W. Cherry Street, Nevada, Mo., says: "I was convinced of the great value of Doan's Kidney Pills through personal experience. Four or five months ago I suffered a great deal from a pain across the small of my back, extending at times into my limbs and shoulders. When I stooped or did any work that brought a strain on the muscles of my back, my trouble was aggravated. I tried a number of remedies but without success. After a short time I could see that they were benefiting me, and the contents of two and one-half boxes cured me." (Statement given in May, 1909.)

RE-ENDORSEMENT

On Dec. 3rd, 1908, Mr. Sears said: "I still have great faith in Doan's Kidney Pills. I feel justified in re-endorsing this remedy as it has done so much for me."

How To Tell When The Kidneys Are Disordered

PAINFUL SYMPTOMS

Backache, sideache, pains when stooping or lifting, sudden sharp twinges, rheumatic pains, neuralgia, painful, scanty or too frequent urination, dizzy spells, dropsy.

URINARY SYMPTOMS

Discolored or cloudy urine. Urine that contains sediment. Urine that stains the linen. Painful passages. Blood or shreds in the urine. Let a bottleful of the morning urine stand for 24 hours. If it shows a cloudy or fleecy settling, or a layer of fine grains, like brick-dust, the kidneys are disordered.

NEVER ANY RETURN
A Complete Cure of Kidney Trouble and Dropsy

Mrs. L. L. Babers, 1615 Terry St., Houston, Texas, says: "I hold a very high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills and with good reason, for three years ago they cured me of kidney trouble that had clung to me for several years. There was a dropsical swelling of my feet and limbs in addition to other symptoms of kidney complaint, and although I used various remedies, I was not helped until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills. Two boxes of this preparation cured me and I have never had the slightest return of my trouble. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many people who have questioned me about them, and I know of several cases in which they have done the same good work."

$125,000 net from 1200 acres grapes.
$15,000 from 22 acres peaches.
$3,200 from 20 acres raisins, in the San Joaquin Valley, California

A cow and an acre of alfalfa will earn $120 a year in the San Joaquin Valley.

Grapes will yield from $100 to $300 per acre; peaches and apricots, $150 to $500; while oranges will produce from $250 to $500, and in many instances more than $1000 an acre. There are ten million arable and irrigable acres here. You still may buy unimproved land for $50 an acre.

Ten acres are enough to comfortably support a small family. Twenty acres afford a fine living, with money in the bank. Forty acres should make you rich.

You pay from one-fourth to one-third down, balance easily can be paid for out of the crops.

Almost anything can be raised in the San Joaquin country—oranges and wheat, figs and apples, delicate grapes and hardy potatoes. Products of the temperate and semi-tropic zones flourish side by side.

Plenty of water for irrigation drawn from the near-by Sierra snows. It is easy for one to make a start. Land between the rows can be used, while orchard is young, for many profitable crops. The point is to make every square foot bear something.

What some farmers have done:

Frank Thomas, of Fresno, Cal., bought twenty acres of land five years ago. He had but $300 to start on. Today his place is paid for and he has an income of over $2,000 a year.

William Shrayer, R. F. D. 7, Fresno, Cal., bought his first ten acres six years ago. Now owns sixty acres all paid for, and refuses $12,000 for his place.

M. F. Tarpey, of Fresno, owns vineyard of 1,200 acres, from which he takes an annual profit of $125,000.

On the Harold estate, twenty-two acres of peaches yielded a $15,000 crop.

Carson Reed, Reedley, Cal., from a twenty-acre crop of Sultana raisins netted $3,200.

I know this valley from end to end. I have seen crops planted and harvested in every one of its counties. I have interviewed farmers, ranchers and merchants. I have collated the testimony of crop experts.

All this valuable information is contained in the San Joaquin Valley land folder issued by the Santa Fe Railway. Write for it, giving full name and address. I will also send you our immigration journal, The Earth, six months free.

The Santa Fe employs me to help settle up its Southwest lines. The Company has no land to sell, but I will gladly refer your inquiry to reliable land owners who have.

Low fares are offered by the Santa Fe daily. Comfortable tourist sleepers and chair cars. The journey also may be made at other times for a reasonable cost. Santa Fe tourist service to San Francisco is quickest.
